

HEInnovate

Lessons/results from the BeyondScale Forward-Looking Cooperation project

Andrea Kottmann, Ben Jongbloed
Centre for Higher Education Policy Studies (CHEPS)
HEInnovate Expert Group meeting
8 April, 2022

On the HEInnovate statements & dimensions

- The statements are seen as too broad and not tailored to the individual institution, so they are mainly useful for the users to start a discussion in their institution and can be used to ask additional questions – often open questions. Statements are the start of the journey.
- Statements are focusing on the HEI as a whole, which makes it difficult to score them, as users often come from a particular department and don't know about other departments. Scoring a 'five' on a statement would actually require a benchmark – a comparative case. But that does not always exist...
- There is a need for a new dimension on Social Entrepreneurship!

On the HEInnovate statements & dimensions

- The (many!) HEInnovate case studies on the HEInnovate website are quite broad and positive, and our partners found them difficult to use for getting inspiration about the actions to undertake to become more entrepreneurial. So, we suggest to deduce ways of making their contents more useful and accessible. BeyondScale constructed a first version of so-called Inspiration Fiches that show Challenges, Interventions, Solutions, Inputs, Barriers. They can inspire the users to start Actions. Recommended actions, so to speak.
- Learning with others DigiBuddy